

I believe that the FAA should approve the new Inogen compact oxygen concentrator for use by individuals on commercial airflights. The product is extremely compact and wonderfully suited for this application. I would hate to see the product not approved merely because it is new to the market. Regards, Jack Crowley, Owner-Atlantic Medical